People walking to UQAM or taking a cab will have to enter by the door 1496, rue Saint-Denis (corner of Ste-Catherine) (there is construction outside, but you can get to the door easily). Once inside, they get to the métro level (marked by an M) which is one floor down. This leads to a sort of open agora and the Salle MGL is there, with glass doors.

Sheraton is between 2 lines (Orange or Green): you either walk to the Bonaventure station (Orange line) and take the train heading to Montmorency, or walk to Peel station (Green line) and take the train heading to Honoré-Beaugrand. In both cases, you exit at Berri-UQAM, go upstairs and follow the signs to get inside UQAM, without going outside. UQAM is directly connected to the subway station, the doors will be right there when you exit the subway gates. Accessibility note: the Berri-UQAM station is equipped with elevators and is accessible. But neither Bonaventure (orange) or Peel (green) stations have an elevator. So a taxi would be the best option and the accessible street door is another one, a bit further: 1400 Berri Street
